The College of Arts and Sciences supports a program intended to provide one semester of College Scholar Award funding to enable tenured faculty to pursue full time research/creative scholarly activities. The funds will be provided to the recipient’s department to fund costs of course replacement, which occur during the semester the award recipient is released from teaching. These awards can be used in conjunction with a sabbatical (although sabbatical is not required). Ten awards will be provided this cycle.

A. Eligibility

The following criteria apply. At the time of application:

1. Applicants must have been full-time tenured faculty members for at least two years in the College of Arts and Sciences.

2. At least four years must have passed since the applicant’s last University of Colorado at Boulder sabbatical. If the applicant has not previously taken a UCB sabbatical, they must have held a full-time UCB College of Arts and Sciences appointment for at least four consecutive years.

B. Application procedure

Each applicant should notify their Chair of their intention to apply for a College Scholar Award well before the application deadline. Unit size and adequacy of teaching coverage will be considered in determining the number of applications. Specifically, one application per unit will be accepted from units with 15 or fewer tenure-track faculty. Two applications can be considered from units with 16 or more tenure-track faculty. If a unit has more than the requisite number of applicants, the unit Chair/Executive Committee should decide which proposals will be forwarded to the College.
Applications are due by 12 Noon on November 1st, 2016. All information and inquiries should be sent electronically, in PDF format, to Anna.Jensen@colorado.edu. Applications must include the following, in 12-point font.

1. A concise (750 words or less) description of the proposed activities during the award period, including the title and goals of the project. The description should be general in nature explaining the value, importance and timeliness of the project.

   Whenever possible avoid technical details; the description should be understandable to people not experienced in the field. In order to avoid conflict of interest, any member of your department who may serve on the awards committee will not be present during the evaluation of your proposal. Because your proposal may be evaluated by scholars outside your field, it should be written so it can be understood by faculty in other disciplines.

   The proposal should explain why the project demands extra time and describe what is exceptional about the project.

   Explain how the fellowship will enhance the candidate’s research and/or teaching capabilities and potentially impact the candidate’s scholarly career.

   The proposal should be self-contained: only information in the proposal description can be considered.

   Finally, please include a statement explaining whether or not the award will be used in conjunction with a sabbatical.

2. A vitae no longer than 3 pages. If applicable, include the date of previous sabbatical. Provide a list of selected publications and service performed and recognition, honors, awards and/or fellowships. For the past four years, list courses taught and any external funding awards (including source, dates, amount, and your role as PI, co-PI, etc.)

Applications which exceed the page limit will be returned.

3. Applicants must obtain a letter of support from the unit Executive Committee or Chair (no more than two pages) regarding the applicant’s project and record of accomplishment including:

- the applicant’s stature in field
- the importance of the fellowship to the applicant’s scholarly career
- applicant’s nature and quality of teaching
- applicant’s current teaching commitment and description of ‘normal’ teaching commitment
- information about any previous release time, including sabbaticals, fellowships, course buyouts, etc.
